SUB TITLES

- #1. No Klondike gold rush marked the discovery of Silver Springs, although Silver Springs releases 368,913 gallons of silvery water each minute and makes a Silver River.
2. But perhaps Silver Springs was too difficult to find.
3. "Gee Sis, just see how plainly you can see everything, clear to the bottom."
4. Having read Jules Verne's "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under The Sea," the trip had an added interest.
5. Ponce De Leon's quest of the Fountain of Youth carried him here, where his ship was sunk and he himself was wounded in a battle with the Indians.
6. The population in Silver Springs itself is about normal but their appetites are far in excess of their numbers.
7. Catfish, weighing 15 pounds, are a feast to the Fisherman's eyes, but that's all, for the clearness of the water makes them almost impossible to catch.
8. An underwater performance.
9. But let's come up for air and board the Wekiwa for a little trip along Silver River
10. ~~MM~~ Hunters there are too, who scour the woods in search of game.
11. Some return empty handed, while others -----
12. So the Life blood of Mother Earth gushes forth, trickling down her breast in an endless stream that is never staunched.
